Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 09 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Windy with frequent showers on Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Clear spells will develop this evening as most places become dry, although with a few isolated showers remaining across the region. Breezy conditions will continue close to the coast. Feeling mild. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Monday:
A rather windy day with frequent showers between sunny spells. These showers will turn heavy and thundery in places, before easing through the evening to become dry overnight. Feeling mild. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Nights become milder but remaining rather unsettled with patchy cloud, sunny spells and showers or longer spells of rain throughout. Daytime temperatures returning to near average.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.